

“Together, we shape the Quality of Rural Life.”

Building Positive Communities Project (BPCP)

India lives in its villages, and the development of marginalized communities will be critical if we want better human development. Building (positive) communities that inspire and promote a sense of self-discovery and group connection, encourage members to express their beliefs and values and build relationships in their neighborhoods to create a collective change for a prosperous society.

Since its commencement of services in January 2011, PARD INDIA has been working to support deprived children (V-kids) and their communities in rural and sub-urban areas.

Our work and services invariably connect rural communities to a global platform and ensure their participation in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) 2030 related to empowerment, poverty, hunger, health, safety, environment, sanitation, climate change, equal justice, etc.

Our “Building Positive Communities Project (BPCP)” has the following community-driven programs addressing the fundamental issues to ensure inclusive development and improve the quality of life of everyone at the grassroots:
